3. TRACKING COOKIES

3.1 Advertising cookies

Tracking cookies and similar techniques used by us mainly concern the use of advertising cookies that can be placed by us and third parties and the so-called social plug-ins that are placed by third parties on our website.

Advertising cookies are used to collect information about your surfing behavior so that you can be shown the advertisements that are of interest to you. These cookies keep track of your browsing history over time, whether or not combined with information from third-party sources, to display relevant content, messages (eg push messages) and advertising messages. The collected data is also used for research purposes and market analysis as well as for the correct and proper functioning of the advertising system.
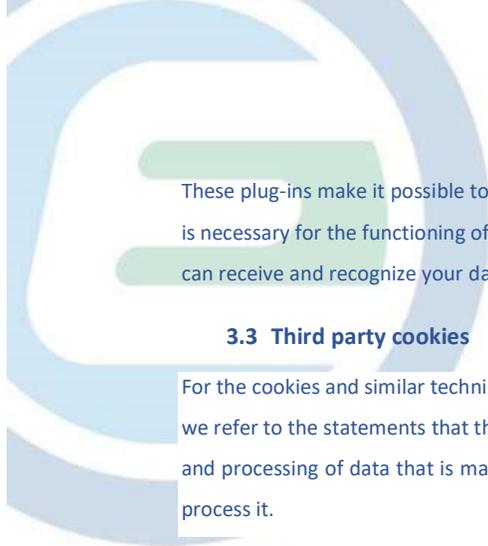

If you refuse these cookies, this does not necessarily mean that you will no longer see any advertisements. After all, advertisements are also shown that do not use such cookies and that are adapted to the content of our website, for example.

3.2 Social plug-ins

Social plug-ins are web components that are designed to share content from an external source with a social network and that allow a certain personalization of the external website.

Social plug-ins are always based on the third parties involved. For example: the like or share button of Facebook, Twitter and Linked in.

These plug-ins make it possible to share the content of our website that you view via social media. The use of social plug-ins is necessary for the functioning of the buttons that make this sharing possible and that ensure that the relevant third parties can receive and recognize your data when you want to share the information.

3.3 Third party cookies

For the cookies and similar techniques that third parties place (see above) and the possible data that they collect with them, we refer to the statements that these parties provide on their own websites. After all, we do not play a role in the collection and processing of data that is made on the basis of these third party cookies, nor do we store that information, nor do we process it.

5.   Disable cookies

It is possible at any time to revoke your initial consent for the use of cookies and similar techniques on our Website. This with the exception of the strictly necessary cookies that are necessary for the optimal functioning of the Website. Disabling cookies may result in certain applications of our Website and additional services not functioning optimally.

1.   VIA THE WEBSITE

In the footer of the Website you will find a button "Click here to change Cookie Preferences". You will then be able to enable or disable specific cookie categories in the popup. This is the same cookie popup that appears when you visit the Website for the very first time.
